Aizlin

Hello I am Aizlin Sly, I am a dancer of about 12 years now and have loved every second of it. Ever since I was a little girl I would dream of being under those bright lights and just performing my heart out. Over time I have gained new skills and abilities and have continually shocked myself. Although with this it also hasn't been an easy road. I have dealt with some struggles from different people. I have been told that in order to become a better dancer I had to become stronger and more flexible even though I already was super strong and flexible. I soon started to realize that they were talking about the way I looked. I am not super skinny but I'm also not over weight, I'm sort of in the middle but I could tell that it just wasn't good enough for these people. Even with this they expected me to gain all these tricks like walkovers and Ariel's which I know are cool but those things aren't what make dance. Dance should make your audience feel something with how you express your movements and not try and impress them with a dance that looks like a gymnast routine. So, recently I have left those people and started to focus on strengthening areas I know I needed and doing it a healthy way. I can say I have grown so much more in just 6 months of doing this than I have in the past 3 years. I want other dancers to know that you don't need to be skinny to dance and you most certainly don't NEED tricks to make your dance memorable. Do what strengthens your body the right and healthy way and listen to your body on days where it can't take certain training.
